UM MARCHING BAND SHOWS OFF NEW UNIFORMS--The University of Montana's marching band will be bigger, louder and more colorful than it's been in years when it returns to the playing field of Washington-Grizzly Stadium Saturday, Sept. 14. The Big Sky Winds Marching Band will make its season debut decked out in new maroon, silver, gold and white uniforms at the halftime show of the Montana Grizzly pre-conference match against Cal Poly-San Luis Obispo. Director Robert LedBetter, assistant professor of music, said the band has grown by about 10 members this year. The band will be joined for its field performance by Tiffany and Brittany Gillespie, a pair of Missoula baton twirlers who won national titles this summer. For more information, call LedBetter at 243-4819.
